CURB TO CURB CARS

This picture shows Ocean Avenue on Saturday afternoon. Where the cars that pour into Carmel weekends can park is a problem. The city also has a parking problem during the week. Mayor Stephen Grant has appointed the Citizens Parking Committee, under the chairmanship of Councilman William Sefton, to study means of alleviating this situation. On Monday, this group set obtaining 800 off-street parking spaces as its objective. How this parking potential can be accomplished will be explored by members of the committee through a survey of merchants, commercial property owners and members of the Carmel Business Association. The survey will seek reactions to a parking authority, that is having parking facilities owned and leased out by a group, such as has been done in Monterey. Members of the parking committee and the groups they represent are Earl Moser, residents; Robert Spencer, Carmel Business Association; August Nieto, Carmel Board of Realtors; Tony Vasconcellos, Carmel Innkeepers Association; Mrs. Geraldine Smith, merchants; James Doud, commercial property owners; William H. Godwin Jr., Carmel Planning Commission. Chairman Sefton says at another meeting within 30 days, the committee should have enough material on which to base recommendations to the city council.

Propose Business License Increase

Whether business license fees should be revised in order to bring in added revenue for Carmel will be considered at the city council meeting on Wednesday night.

"It is felt not unreasonable to suggest that with a registered population of 4,850 persons, and having over 600 gross business licenses in effect, with an annual gross sales in excess of $2 million, also over 1,200 business licenses of all classifications, the business community presently established in Carmel creates a greater demand for city services than do home owning residents," is a statement in a report prepared for the council by the city's administrative staff.

The report stresses the necessity for increasing general fund revenues during the first three months of the city's 1967-68 fiscal year by saying, "In preparing the annual budgets and distributions of resources and anticipated revenues, and projecting the latter for the fiscal year 1967-68, it becomes increasingly apparent that the multiplying activities of the city, as reflected in services rendered and rising fixed costs, a substantial portion of which must be paid during the first three months of each fiscal year prior to the receipt of sales and property tax revenue, will render the monies available inadequate."

The report also points out, "Since revenue received during the first quarter of the fiscal year derives basically from business license taxes, it appears that this source might well be studied . . . with a view toward bringing it into phase with the increased costs of city operation."

Taxpayers Bulletin Gives Misleading Information

By Dr. Harris A. Taylor
CUSD Superintendent

The taxpayers bulletin mailed to the electorate of the Carmel Unified School District contains information which is untrue, half true, and deliberately misleading.

The salaries of both the superintendent and business manager were incorrectly reported. The superintendent was reported as receiving $500, and the business manager $2,250 more than they are earning.

Increases in the district's income over a six-year period were described, but the bulletin purposely omitted the fact that approximately 80% of these funds were expended just to educate the additional children (856) that were enrolled in the district's schools during the same period. The other 20% went to help pay for supplies, equipment, utilities, custodial services, et cetera for these 856 new students along with paying the increased cost of salaries, supplies, equipment for the remaining students.

The bulletin indicates that the existing 50c override will be continued for another five years. Actually, it is only a four-year continuation since the override tax rate does not expire until June 30, 1968.

TAX REFORMS

Many unrealistic tax reforms calling for major legislative action were suggested to confuse the general public. Their suggestions for reform have no bearing whatsoever on the March 7, 1967, tax override election. Citizens should not be misled; there will be no additional outside monies available to the Carmel Unified School District in the forseeable future.

According to the Monterey County assessor, the Carmel Unified School District is now assessed at 25% of actual value and has been for several years. The only tax increases resulting from reassessment will be based on appreciated values between assessments.

MAINTENANCE COSTS

Typical of the taxpayers' bulletin methods, the maintenance cost of an unusual year was cited as an example to call to the public attention. In one year maintenance costs doubled and this was the year that was used for comparison. The fact that the two years preceding this unusually costly year, also the two years following, were very average by all comparative standards seemed to make no difference. In 1964-65, some rather expensive instructional equipment was replaced, causing this unusual increase in cost. (The State Ac-

WEATHER

Mostly sunny days with temperature highs near 72, lows about 40. Northwesterly winds to 15 m.p.h.

Editor's Column

Most property owners in the Carmel Unified School District like where they live. They don't want to live elsewhere. They have an advantage over property owners in other Peninsula school districts. Their school taxes are the lowest in the area.

Let's consider a home and lot valued at $40,000 and assessed for 25 percent of its value (by law) in any Peninsula school district. The tax base is $10,000. On this base, this year, property owners in the Carmel district, where such a property is average, are paying a school tax of $244. For a similar property in Pacific Grove district the tax is $359. In Monterey district, which includes Seaside, the tax is $327.

On Tuesday, voters of the Pacific Grove district voted to increase their school tax to $414 on a property assessed at $10,000.

Next Tuesday, voters of the Carmel Unified School District will be asked to approve a $281 per year school tax for a similar property.

This sum extends a present 50 cent override tax for four years and adds a 37 cent override tax for five years. (The 50 cent override is included in this year's $244 school tax on a $40,000 property and will have to be paid until June 30, 1968).

Both the superintendent and board of education of the Carmel Unified School District have conservatively and forthrightly presented the need for raising the school tax in order to maintain buildings, also the quality of education, for the 3,000 children in the district's schools.

A YES vote is recommended in Tuesday's election.

CUSD Did Consider Reassessment Factor

The question has been raised: Did the Carmel Unified School District take into account the periodic reassessment of property in determining its financial needs for the next five years? The answer is a very emphatic "Yes!"

The District has estimated that it will experience a 5.5 percent increase in assessed valuation yearly based on new construction and reassessment of property.

Donald P. Stewart assessor for the County of Monterey, has stated that the Carmel Unified School District has been assessed at 25 percent of actual property value level for the past several years, and therefore, the maximum required percentage (25 percent of actual property value) has been reached and will not be exceeded. He also stated that the district is divided into three general assessment areas; coastal area, City of Carmel and adjacent areas, and Carmel Valley, and that these three areas are not reassessed during the same year. There will undoubtedly be just one reassessment of the total district during the next five-year period since Stewart indicated he had no plans to change his method of assessing.

The 5.5 percent increase in assessed valuation estimate was also based on the trend established over the past five years, during which there was a reassessment at 25 percent of actual value level.

In 1961-62 the district experienced a 16.2 percent increase in assessed valuation while in 1966-67 the district experienced a 4.5 percent increase.

With the current "tight money" situation for new construction, next year could be lower than the 4.5 percent increase of last year.

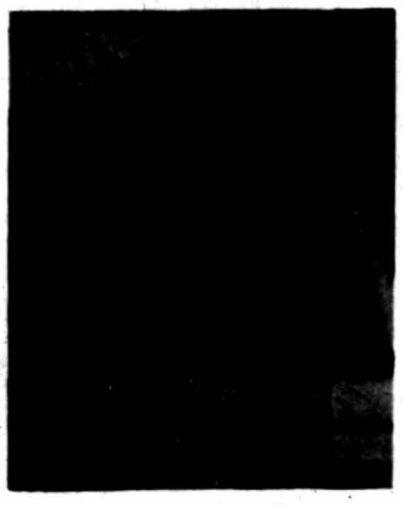

In the light of these data, the 5.5 percent yearly increase in assessed valuation may be overly optimistic. If it turns out to be lower, the district will financially suffer.

SERVING IN KOREA

Second Lieutenant Edward A. Luker, above, son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. G. R. Luker and grandson of Mrs. Florence La Stewart, is in Korea serving as aide to Brigadier General T. J. Camp of the 7th Infantry Division.

A member of the 1959 class at Bolles Military Academy, Jacksonville, Florida, Ned Luker subsequently received a B.A. degree in history at Vanderbilt University where he was also enrolled in the Army ROTC program. Upon graduation in January 1966, he received a commssion as second lieutenant of infantry.

Stationed close to the demilitarized zone that separates the Republic of South Korea from Communist North Korea, Lt. Luker's mission in the 7th Division is to help the South Koreans defend their frontiers by being ready for any mission assigned.

ENSIGN SMITH

Floyd Robertson Smith, husband of the former Pamela Peterson of Carmel, has completed 16 weeks of Naval Officer Candidate School at Newport, Rhode Island, and received his commission as an ensign in the Naval Reserve at graduation ceremonies last month. He is now stationed at Port Hueneme Civil Engineer Corps School. During his training, Ensign Smith held a student office as assistant battalion commander. He is a graduate of the University of California at Davis where he earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering.

Guarding Bamboo Curtain

Michael J. Monti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ercole P. Monti, has been promoted to staff sergeant in the U.S. Air Force. He is an administrative specialist on duty at a forward air force combat base in Southeast Asia.

Sergeant Monti is a member of the Pacific Air Forces, the nation's combat ready air arm guarding the 10,000-mile Bamboo Curtain. He is a 1959 graduate of Fremont Union High School in Sunnyvale and his wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Mrs. Barbara J. Proctor of Tahoe Vista, California.

New Taxpayers Group Favors Override Tax

"Not all Carmel area taxpayers are against the override. Members of our group heartily favor it—and will work for its passage."

This is the official policy statement of the Carmel Area Taxpayers Group.

"Our primary purpose is to show that not all taxpayers are opposed to education," said Dr. Toland Doud, who was elected chairman of the newly-formed association.

"All the members of our organization are taxpayers. Many of them pay very high taxes, indeed. And we all want tax relief.

"But every one of us," he continued, "received our educations with the help of taxpayers. And we think the children of this area are entitled to the best in education, also."

A second purpose of the group, according to Dr. Doud, is "to not cry about taxes and tax relief, but to work actively to help find remedies. We will work closely with our elected representatives to find realistic solutions."

Dr. Doud said many citizens are irritated over the tactics of a local group which opposes the override, and that the members of the new taxpayers group favor not only the override, but also favor telling the truth about it.

Twenty-five members of the Carmel Area Taxpayers Group have gathered facts and figures, according to Dr. Doud, which tell the true story of why the override is needed. Neighborhood chairmen are carrying these information kits to homes in the district.

"Citizens who are not visited, but wish to know the truth, are asked to call me—and I will ask a member of our group to bring the data to you," said Dr. Doud.

In working to support the override, said Dr. Doud, members of the Carmel Area Taxpayers Group ask voters to consider one important point.

"We ask each person who ever attended a public school, or received his education at a public-

A second purpose of the group, according to Dr. Doud, is "to not cry about taxes and tax relief, but to work actively to help find remedies. We will work closely with our elected representatives to find realistic solutions."

Dr. Doud said many citizens are irritated over the tactics of a local group which opposes the override, and that the members of the new taxpayers group favor not only the override, but also favor telling the truth about it.

Twenty-five members of the Carmel Area Taxpayers Group have gathered facts and figures, according to Dr. Doud, which tell the true story of why the override is needed. Neighborhood chairmen are carrying these information kits to homes in the district.

"Citizens who are not visited, but wish to know the truth, are asked to call me—and I will ask a member of our group to bring the data to you," said Dr. Doud.

In working to support the override, said Dr. Doud, members of the Carmel Area Taxpayers Group ask voters to consider one important point.

"We ask each person who ever attended a public school, or received his education at a public-

WORLD OF THE WHITE RHINOS

Have you ever been within 50 feet of a white rhinoceros? Mrs. Edward J. Jackemy has. She recently returned from a four-month cruise during which she toured the east coast of Africa.

Mrs. Jackemy boarded the Dutch freighter, the Neder Elbe, on October 18 in San Francisco and arrived in Cape Town, South Africa, in early November.

"In South Africa the white man is still in control but as you move up the coast you find more and more nationalism in such countries as Tanganyika and Kenya" Mrs. Jackemy observed.

"Africa is one of the fastest developing countries in the world and has a great deal of potential that is just beginning to be realized," she added.

From politics to rhinoceroses in the beautiful Hlushluew Game Reserve not far from Durban, is no great jump when one travels in Africa, a land of mystery and adventure. Over a week was spent by Mrs. Jackemy in this interesting spot taking pictures of the different animals that would come to water holes and salt licks. It was during this time that she got pictures of the rare white rhinos that appear only in this area.

"Fifty feet was close enough, believe me," was Mrs. Jackemy's comment on this part of her trip.

"When we got back to the ship from Hlushluew Reserve, we discovered that we had forgotten all about Thanksgiving, which was several days past, but our captain had not and we dined on a huge turkey in a belated celebration," Mrs. Jackemy reports.

The Island of Zanzibar was the next stop on her journey and from there the ship went on to Mombasa where an extensive tour was made of the Tree Top Game Reserve. While there, Mrs. Jackemy stayed in the famous Hotel in the Trees and again many wild animals were captured by her camera, much to the enjoyment of herself and her friends here at home.

The ship then made its slow way up the Red Sea through the Suez Canal into the Mediterranean Sea. The next stop was the beautiful city of Lisbon, Portugal. A week was spent sightseeing in this delightful port and then the cruise continued across the Atlantic Ocean to New York City.

The Neder Elbe left New York City after several days and headed down the east coast of the United States, into the Caribbean Sea and through the Panama Canal. From there San Francisco was the last port of call on Mrs. Jackemy's trip—then back home to Carmel.

"You must be prepared to entertain yourself when you travel by freighter," Mrs. Jackemy warns, so I took a carton of books and a lot of hand work to do while on board ship."

At home, Mrs. Jackemy is surrounded by the beautiful wood carvings that she got while in Africa, also many other interesting handicrafts picked up in her travels.

"It was a lovely trip and very enjoyable. Traveling by freighter is a relaxing way to see the world," she states.

Drawings Selected

Nini Turner, the daughter of Commander and Mrs. Thomas A. Turner of Carmel, has had several of her free hand drawings selected to appear in the Journal of Environmental Design which is a book produced by the University of California at Berkeley.

Nini, who is just finishing her first semester at the university, will now be entering her junior year. She attended Carmel High School until her senior year when, with her family, she moved to Napa and attended the junior college there for a year.

After spending two years at Monterey Peninsula College Nini decided that she wanted to go to the University of California at Berkeley.

"Nini has always loved to draw but she has been so busy taking required subjects in school that this is the first time that she has had a chance to take any art courses at all," Mrs. Turner said.

Besides an art history course, Nini is taking several drawing classes and also a chemistry class which her mother states "is very hard and not half as much fun."

In College Play

Ken Hicks of Carmel, who is a sophomore at Grinnell College in Iowa, played the lead role in that college's production of Arthur Miller's play "After the Fall."

It was the first non-professional group to perform this play. Ken had the main role of Quentin. The production was held two weeks ago.

Watch Your Wicket

Toby Edson, world traveling son of Mrs. "Chum" Edson of Carmel, is now in Tasmania after several months spent touring Australia.

In his latest letter home, Toby casually stated that while he had been in Launceston, Tasmania, the head football coach of the professional team there had asked him if he wouldn't like to play. Toby was surprised at the offer as he had not played football since he was on the team at Carmel High School in 1960. As he still has not been to Europe on his trip Toby turned down the offer with great regrets—but not too many!

He did, however, play his first game of cricket while in Tasmania. This, to quote his letter, "afforded a great deal of comic relief for both the audience as well as the other players and it wasn't until I was put into the outfield that the game continued with any degree of order."

Toby will head back to the Australian mainland then take a ship leaving from Melbourne on March 4 to go to England. He plans to spend some time in London, then hopes to travel in Europe.

'Aloha To Springtime'

Several Carmel gardens will be featured in the 14th House and Garden Tour on April 19 now being planned by the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services for the benefit of the Visiting Nurse Association.

Mrs. S. Y. Cutler, garden tour chairman, reported on the formation of committees to assist her in the project at the regular membership meeting held at the U.S.O. on February 3. She introduced Mrs. Archer Allen as chairman of the garden selection committee. The theme, "Aloha to Springtime" for the tour, as well as the formal tea which will be held in an estate garden, also met with the approval of the membership.

Mrs. Margaret Pratt, finance chairman, was authorized to subscribe $250 to Handicapped Activities Unlimited and $100 to Juvenile Hall. Proceeds to be earned on a participating basis were allotted to the Children's Home Society during the month of March, the Community Hospital Auxiliary during the month of June and the first two weeks of October have been given to the Y.M.C.A.

A CHARMING JAPANESE FEAST

An old Japanese proverb says that "Food must feast the eye as well as the appetite." This was so true just recently at "Kappoh Mahku Tomasu" (Mark Thomas Inn) when its fourth International Night delighted diners. Not only the exquisite menu, but the fairyland replica of "Cherry Blossom Time in Kyoto" made it an evening of fantasy.

Although under a spell from the moment we stepped through the Japanese Garden Gate for kahkutehru (cocktails) in the "Pavilion of the Sun" until dee-nah, we were able to appreciate the shoji (delicate sliding panels), tami (finely woven floor mats), handpainted gold and crimson decorators' screens, copied from original priceless antiques, plus the torii gate, loaned by the Peninsula's Buddhist Temple.

Graeme Mackenzie has brought a cosmopolitan spirit to our already well traveled Peninsulans. No detail was overlooked by Albert Railton, in his research, and the versatile Mark Thomas staff. Tremendous enthusiasm was shown for the Buddhist Temple dancers and Professor Tetsuo Imagawa of the Defense Language Institute who was master of ceremonies.

Now on to the menu taken from the Japanese chapter in Phyllis Jervey's travel-cookbook "A World of Parties" and carried through by the inn's talented Chef Hillebrand. These dishes have the added advantage of being easily duplicatd at home.

MODERN JAPANESE SPRINGTIME SUPPER
Clear Abalone or Clam Broth
Beef and/or Chicken Teriyaki
Barbecued Prawns
Fluffy Rice
Japanese Crabmeat Salad
Mandarin Oranges
Fortune Cookies
Beer Green Tea Cookies

CLEAR ABALONE OR CLAM BROTH
(Serves 8)

Two cans or bottles of abalone or clam juice, or make a broth by simmering pounded abalone or clams in their shells. Add water to the strained broth but a strong flavor is desired so do not dilute much and omit salt. Heat to boiling and add a little white pepper. Pour the soup into Japanese bowls. Top each with a slice of lemon cut into fancy design. Add chopped chives or parsley. Pass a miinature teapot filled with Japanese shoyu (soy sauce) which is more delicately flavored than the Chinese variety. Use Japanese porcelain spoons but it is quite polite to sip from the bowls, using both hands. Sesame crackers or rice wafers are usually served with the soup course.

BEEF AND CHICKEN TERIYAKI
(Serves 8)

Four lbs., each, sirloin beef and chicken; 8 green onions; 1½ cups soy sauce; 5 tbsps. dry white wine; ½ cup sugar; juice of 1 lemon; pinch of powdered ginger; 1 clove garlic put through press; 1 grated long white radish or 3 minced red radishes; slight shake of Tabasco; sprinkle of Accent.

Cut the raw sirloin beef and/or chicken into half-inch squares. Combine other ingredients, except onions, to make a superb sauce which is cooked slowly until syrupy and has decreased to 2/3 of original amount. Put meat on bamboo or steel skewers with pieces of onion between. Grill quickly on charcoal hibachi, barbecue stand or under oven or electric broiler. Brush with sauce during cooking. Double amount of sauce if serving both beef and chicken.

Beef Teriyaki is Japan's "Friendship Dish" because it is so universally enjoyed.

BARBECUED PRAWNS

Serve at least four prawns per person. Shell, devein, split and open prawns butterfly fashion, leaving tails on. Marinate prawns for two hours in a sauce made from soy sauce, white wine, sugar, cornstarch, crushed garlic and grated fresh ginger to taste. Put several prawns (or jumbo shrimp) into foil packets and then onto the coals. If skewers are used, spear several shrimp through both "wings" to keep them compact. Pass extra heated sauce, sieved hard cooked eggs, paprika and lemon quarters for garnish.

JAPANESE CRABMEAT SALAD
(Serves 8)

Two 6½-oz. cans Japanese King crabmeat; 1 green bell pepper or equal amount of green onions; 4 long white radishes or 8 round red ones; 4 celery stalks; 1 bunch watercress or tender raw spinach leaves; vegetable oil; lemon juice; soy sauce.

Flake crabmeat lightly after removing any gristle. Add rest of ingredients cut into small pieces and season to taste with oil, soy sauce and lemon juice. Raw cauliflower slivers may also be included and sprinkled with minced chives.

During the meal, warm sake and cold beer is served and of course, fragrant green tea. "Gochiso sama deshita" (It was indeed a treat!)

L'Alliance Francaise Luncheon And Concert

This March may well be the busiest in the annals of the Alliance Francaise of the Monterey Peninsula for many years. Hardly had plans been made for the mid-Lent dinner and costume ball tonight at the Casa Munras than Alliance members were told of a forthcoming luncheon in honor of Mrs. Joseph S. Thompson, vice-president of the Federation of Alliance Francaise chapters in the United States. This anticipated event will take place at the Beach Club Friday, March 10 at 12:30 p.m. Those wishing to attend must obtain reservations from Mrs. Jerome Carlson (624-3195) or Mrs. James Hathaway (372-1138). No reservations will be accepted after March 8.

Another treat in store is the concert by a guitarist and singer, Anna Marly, on March 12 at 2:30 p.m. at the Tantamount Theater in Carmel Valley.

Miss Marly bills herself as a troubador.. Her program will include songs in French, Spanish, Portuguese and Russian. This talented artist is well known in France, England and South America and has toured extensively in the U.S. Her concert will benefit the scholarship fund of the local Alliance chapter. Refreshments will be served free during a half-hour intermission.

Reservations should be made by letter enclosing donations ($1.50) for tickets which will be sent by return mail. Checks should be sent to Alliance Francaise, Box 3573, Carmel.

Dutch Journalist To Speak Here Monday

By popular request, Willem Oltmans will return to lecture for the Carmel Woman's Club on Monday at 2 p.m. Oltmans toured the length and breadth of Africa this past summer—his fourth visit to this continent in the past ten years.

Holder of a Dutch passport, Oltmans is able to visit many areas normally out of bounds to American reporters, such as Cuba, which he has visited six times since Castro came into power. He has also covered Asia, the Near East, India, Indonesia, Malaysia and Southeast Asia.

Oltman's interest in, and understanding of, the Netherlands East Indies is a long-standing family tradition. He is the fourth generation of his family to go to Indonesia. As a result of these family affiliations and his activities as a Dutch journalist in Jakarta writing for Holland's best known papers and magazines, Oltmans came to know personally many political and business leaders in Southeast Asia. In the fall of last year, he was posted to Jakarta as correspondent for NTS, the largest television channel in the Netherlands. His observations on the present situation in Indonesia should be particularly interesting and timely.

He will be introduced by Mrs. J. R. Lynas, president and program chairman.

Verve, Precision Displayed By Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra

by John Upton

It is heart-warming to contemplate such a categorically successful enterprise as the Carmel Music Society, which chooses its artists with intelligence and taste and then packs Sunset auditorium drum-tight for every concert.

Latest of these satisfying evenings was last Thursday night's concert by the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra, a really first-rate string group led by Karl Munchinger. These 16 musicians (many of them in their early twenties) played with verve and precision, and their rapport with their leader was evident in the first bar. Munchinger is a conductor of the old European school—a ramrod military bearing contrasting rather oddly with dramatic, caressing hand gestures—and with his flowing mane of white hair made us think of a diminutive Leopold Stokowski. We who are used to a rather more matter-of-fact approach to conducting found Munchinger a bit pompous at first; but as the evening went on we realized that, like Stokowski, he is a master in his field.

In a program cannily selected from the baroque and nearly contemporary periods, Munchinger neatly demonstrated the high degree of musicianship to be found in his troupe. Johann Pachelbel's "Kanon," with its majestic eight-bar statement reiterated in the bass and its sonorous variations rising like mounain ranges, was a sheer delight. Pergolesi's "Concertino No. 1 in G Major" was so joyous and lovely that it saddened us to remember that this gifted eighteenth-century Italian died at 26.

Georg Telemann, whose "Concerto for Viola and String Orchestra in G Major" we heard, is at the moment enjoying a resurgence of popularity in the recording field; and the Stuttgart Orchestra showed us why. He is very nearly as inventive and various as Bach, and in addition invests his scores with such opulence, such glowing color, that we are lost in admiration. Hermann Voss, who played solo viola, has a warm, ruby-red tone that suits the work admirably. His performance left a little to be desired in the Presto movement, where the notes were going by him a little too fast and he was not always in perfect control. Voss is a young man, and seemed a little nervous; so we may assume that he has not played the work often, and that subsequent performances will be better.

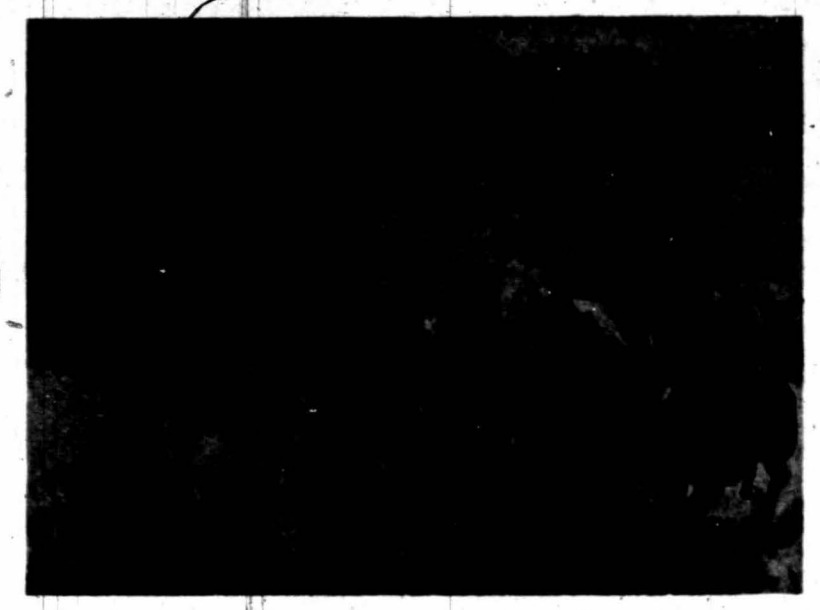

Christolph Willibald Gluck, a younger contemporary of Telemann's, was already abandoning some of the baroque musical tradition and feeling the pressure that was to lead to romanticism. As a result, his "Chaconne" lacks the charm and gaiety we have learned to look for in eighteenth-century music. Munchinger's reading of the work was impeccable, but after Telemann it seemed thin and somewhat unimaginative.

With little less than sheer genius, Munchinger saved his blockbuster for the end of the program: Benjamin Britten's "Variations on a Theme by Frank Bridge." This mad piece of musical sleight of hand (which many of us, myself included, had never heard before) turned out to be a delightful surprise. In 11 brief movements, Britten parodies nearly every musical form from the bourree to the Viennese waltz, and is by turns mischievous, menacing, bombastic, overblown, euphoric, and corny. It may be the wittiest composition ever written, with Piston's "The Incredible Flautist" running a close second. The orchestra romped through this extremely difficult and demanding spoof with perfect aplomb, not seeming to mind in the least that Britten had set them such a nearly impossible task. Munchinger's superb bassist coolly produced great awkward swoops of sound and knuckle-breaking dashes into the intractable upper reaches of his instrument. The cellists cheerfully strummed ukelele chords, and the violins and violas calmly executed impossible intervals in hitherto unknown positions. The effect was brilliant, exciting, and very funny.

Orchestras do not often play encores; so we were surprised and delighted at the unexpected lagniappe when Munchinger, in deference to deafening applause after the Britten work, launched into the Bach "Fugue in A Minor." Like so much of the program that preceded it, this was exactly the right choice. Bach's serenity and total self-assurance have a calming effect on the soul, which we needed after Britten's near-hysteria. The performance was, of course, faultless.

The Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra, like all the artists brought to us this season by the Carmel Music Society, is going to be a hard act to follow. At this point, however, the society has our complete confidence, and we await the advent of violinist Henryk Szeryng on March 28 with a pleasant sense of assurance.

RED CROSS ISSUES SPECIAL INVITATION

An invitation to the public is being extended by the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross, to come into the headquarters building during March, to see what activities take place there and to learn how the money they give is being spent.

"Although visitors are welcome at any time, it seems especially appropriate to extend a special invitation during this officially designated month of the national membership and fund drive," said Dorothy James, the chapter's executive secretary.

REPORTS FROM RLS

By Chandler Meloy

TEAMS SHOW WELL

A review of team "sports" this past week brought many honors to Stevenson School.

BASKETBALL: John Cann paced the varsity to fourth place in the C.A.A. basketball tournament last weekend. It was the 14th annual classic for the league, and it was Stevenson's best performance in history. Cann was voted to the first team in the league, while Mike Greene was placed on the third team. Jeff Erlandson, who also played in the tournament and scored 12 points in one quarter, was honored by being selected on the first team for the Frosh-Soph "hoopsters." The rally "team," in competition with rooting sections from eight schools, was just nosed out by .3%, to take second honors in that event, while Don Stillwell directed an award-winning skit. Earlier in the week, a giant rally and bonfire were held on the athletic field, with Headmaster Ricklefs lighting the "pyre," and student speeches directed by Bill Atkins and Smith Dungan.

RIDING: 90 riders from the Monterey region competed in the Pebble Beach Schooling Horse Show last weekend. Winning honors for RLS were Mason Phelps with two firsts and two seconds; Dennis Simard and Gerry Grant with firsts in their class; and Coach Norman Ellis with a first in his class. Others who participated included Doug Arnstein, Larry Grant, Martin Mooney and Ken Upchurch. Special thanks from the team goes to the Costello family for all its help in coaching tips and encouragement.

SPEECH: 90 debate teams from 12 states (from Hawaii to Kansas) competed in the 11th annual Stanford Invitational Forensic Tournament this past weekend. The debators represented the top 5% of their high school classes. The Stevenson team of Smith Dungan and Bill Atkins tied for 3rd. From 100 contestants, Smith Dungan took second in Impromptu. Other outstanding performances were given by Jim Russell (two firsts) and Lonnie Foy (three seconds) in Dramatic Interp: Joe Arsenio (one first) and Terry Talbot (one second) in Extemp: Bob Howard (with a second in his round) in impromptu. Joel Harris and Bill Atkins also made a fine showing in Oratory, while Howard and Terry Talbot had a solid 3-3 record in debate. This total effort was the best from the Monterey area, and the best in the P.F.L. (Speech league from Gilroy to San Luis Obispo).

GLEE CLUB: A special performance is scheduled for the chapel at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday. Popular and folk tunes will be presented by both the club and the trio. Bruce Wileman, Fred Manning and Mike Popovitch will be on guitar, with Tim Donahoe on drums. Under the direction of music chairman Robert Peterson, the boys will include such songs as "Stick of Bamboo," "Sign of the Times," "500 Miles," " You Gotta Hide Ur Love Away," plus a solo selection, "Little Boy," by Fred Manning. The public is invited to attend. Other members of the Glee Club include John Urist, Sandy Smith, Walt Sullivan, Pat Clark, Dave Greb, Rick Bessom, Richard Miller, Will Haas, Martin Mooney, Jim Booth, Gary Bechtel, Jeff Smith, Taji Bugbee, and Paul Erickson.

YEARBOOK: Boys who have been putting a great deal of time on the "unsung" job of the yearbook include Taylor Grant, Ed Rowe, Mark Coffey and Mark Hornberger. They are the top salesmen who have been doing a wonderful job of representing the school in the "business world." Our thanks, of course, to all those parents and friends of the school who so generously support the yearbook with their sponsorships and ads. It will be a beauty this year, in a new format, with a unique cover. We hope you have shared in this student program.

CARNIVAL-BAZAAR-AUCTION: March 11 is the day. Sunshine has been ordered. Prizes are bigger and more colorful than ever. Both Rick Besson, for the student, and Mrs. Tom Hudson, for the Mothers' Club, have rave reports on progress and activities for the fun day at Stevenson. Save that date . . . all are welcome.

LITTLE LEAGUE SIGNUP

Carmel Little League asks that all boys who wish to play in the league sign up on March 7 and 8 from 7-9 p.m. in the Carmel Middle School library. Each boy should bring his birth certificate and be accompanied by his parents.

ALL BOYS, REGARDLESS OF FORMER LITTLE LEAGUE STATUS, MUST SIGN UP.

Tryouts will be held on consecutive Saturdays — March 18, March 25 and April 1.

AFS Benefit Film Showing March 22

The Carmel American Field Service Chapter is presenting a premiere performance of "Dr. Zhivago" at the Village Theatre on March 22 to benefit the local AFS foreign student exchange program.

This year, Tais dos Santos of Brazil is a senior at Carmel High under the AFS program. Two Carmel High students have been nominated to go abroad under the same program and it is planned to bring another foreign student to Carmel next year. The film showing is to raise funds for these projects.

The patron committee for the event met last Wednesday at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Robert E. Newton, to make further plans. Present were Mrs. Frank Faulkner, Mrs. John K. Hicks, Mrs. Edwin B. Miller, Mrs. Ralph Thompson Jr., Mrs. Frederick Duhring, Mrs. Ted Fehring, Mrs. Ted Durein, Mrs. Phyllis Calley, Mrs. William Pentony and Mrs. Martin Forster.

Tickets ($5 and tax deductible) may be obtained at Central Box Office. Champagne will be served at intermission.

MY MOST INTERESTING TRIP

MALLORCA IDYLL

by H. Hansen

We had come down the Rhine from Amsterdam, the two of us, 17 pieces of luggage, cameras, hat boxes, a special pillow, without which one cannot possibly sleep, clothes for all climes, pills for all seasons, film for all weather, and enough hope to forever spring eternal.

We had missed the tulips in Holland—they had been a little late that year—had gotten lost south of Bonn, put up in Koblenz, adored Altdorf, loved Lugano, missed Milano, favored Florence, got our feet wet in Venice, had oil and vinegar on boiled vegetables in Verona, peered at Pisa, gussied through Genova and thought Nice nice.

Each My Most Interesting Trip story has been written by an entrant in the Pine Cone's travel contest. Following publication, Carmel travel agents will select three winners. First prize will be a $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Two $25 bonds will be awarded, also.

We had managed somehow to drive 5,000 miles, most of it in the wrong direction, and finally had reached Barcelona.

Much of the Catalonian coast, that 100 miles of sea and rock and pines which join Barcelona and the French border, is like the Monterey Peninsula shoreline. But the tourist influx of recent years brought on a major building boom, a consequence of which is gouged out hillsides and raw new resort hotels.

This was not for us.

"We could go back to Switzerland," I said. We had enjoyed it there, particularly Vevey where we had stayed in a century-old chateau overlooking the lake.

"Too far," Helen said, and it was.

"What about Mallorca?" I asked. We quickly traced it on the map.

"How far?"

"About an inch," I replied, which turned out to be just over 100 miles.

We arranged through the agent for American Express to book passage on the Ciudad de Barcelona. It was recommended by Temple Fielding and we had found his guidebook without fault. The steamer was to leave at 10 p.m. the following day. Our car was delivered to the docks at 10 a.m. We had a day in which to visit Barcelona.

In the morning the Old City, that relic of a half-dozen cultures arranged like an archaeological lyer cake—a city built on a city built on a city. Roman ruins in the basement; the royal residence of kings above. The courtyard in which Ferdinand and Isabella bid Christopher Columbus "adios" and "mucho oro," he of the pawned-jewelry fleet.

In the afternoon a bullfight, our first. Two matadors, who were hackers and bumblers, repulsed us and almost sent us away, but one was heroic and brave and whatever else Hemingway said on the subject.

It was boarding time. "Ole!" We had been without rest for 15 hours. We had wandered Barcelona like a lost Dickensian urchin, looking at monuments and buildings, houses and ships. We were weary and wilted, and looking forward to our first-class accommodations, which Mr. Fielding's guidebook had suggested as the better way to travel. A hot shower to ease the aches, dinner in the first class dining room (I wondered if we should dress), an excellent Spanish brandy in the main salon and an early bed.

The ship was disaster.

The plumbing was a very clever invention which managed to combine most of the sanitary conveniences into one grand enameled scalding trap. The dinner was pasty and bland. The bed was pallet-thin. The brandy could only have been left over from a fire-eater's act. And sleep was impossible.

Thus we arrived in Palma, Mallorca.

Puerto de Pollensa lies in a gentle bay at the far end of the island. Off season it is an unbelievably unspoiled fishing village. In season the village swings. The beaches abound in bikini-clad girls. The bay swings to the beat of water skiiers and moving yachts. The bars tinkle sweetly — nine-cent martinis and 15-cent bottles of wine.

We put up at the Illa d'Or, a white plaster resort hotel with Moorish arches, tamarisk trees, and a magnificent view of the bay.

"I think we could live here forever," said Helen.

A shaded, gravelly walk followed the bayside from our hotel to the village, past tamarisk trees and stone boat landings and ancient walled villas. Here we took our morning walks. We carried sugar cubes to the donkey who grazed in an open pasture, bits of bread for the carp-like fish in the bay, and sometimes milk for a mother and her half-starved kittens who had taken up residence in a rose trellis overhanging the porch of a nearby villa.

Midway into the village were a fig tree on a terrace and red geraniums in a window box, so we broke our stroll to pay a call on Bar Katy, for five generations the home of Katy's kin, but which now has become a favored spot for resident Europeans and Americans.

Ib Christiansen, Katy's Danish partner, who we suspected might be otherwise affectionately related to the proprietress, spotted us along the path and set out wine and glasses—one for Helen, one for me, and one for Ib.

We talked and Ib reminisced about flying in the Yukon or fighting in the Resistance. Or Barney of the Red Beard drank his scotch and talked about his home in the Channel Islands and explained why he gave up drinking, except, of course, just a touch with a friend. Or Peter dropped by between charters of his 23-foot boat, which he sailed down from Denmark, to complain about business. Or the German—no one remembered his name—came by but only listened.

Some days we bowled at the outdoor bowling alley. The lanes measured 25 feet of undulating cement. The balls were of stone and ran from grapefruit-small to pumpkin-large. Helen, who cannot bowl, somehow became the local champion.

Other days we swam, or hired Juan and his boat for a picnic trip to Formentor. The hotel fixed lunch of cold veal and eggs and thick-crusted bread, and we searched the inlets and coves on the way, Juan fishing off the transom.

Or we visited the Roman ruins at Alcudia, or lost ourselves along the back roads to the south.

Or, on a particularly festive day, we took our friends to Inca, an inland farm village where there is a fifteenth century wine cellar which serves thick bean soup and roast suckling pig, great pitchers of wine and coarse country bread. I've signed their guest book, somewhere after A. Stevenson and Winston Churchill.

"Helen, let's never leave."

But one day, during dinner in our hotel, the phone rang. "The senor must answer it an once, it is from America."

"Bad news?"

"Yes, Helen, very bad news."

"We have to go home?"

"Yes, we have to go home, now."

So we drove to Palma in the middle of the night and flew to London — 17 pieces of luggage, cameras, pillow, pills, film, hats, cats, sacks . . .

The Complete Gardener

. . . a regular diet of information having to do with plants

This is the month of Spring. Days are getting longer, soils are getting warmer, and plants are feeling about for food. Soils are usually lowest in available nitrogen during the early Spring, when it's most needed. If you haven't already fed your shrubs and trees put this important duty near the top of your list. Any complete, dry fertilizer will do, and by all means look into the use of blue planting tablets for this purpose. Your nurseryman will be glad to advise you.

BARE-ROOT DEADLINE

We are getting near to the last call for bare-root planting. Most nurserymen are preparing to can their remaining stock and that, of course, will mean new price tags. As these bare-root trees and roses come out of dormancy, and put forth leaves and new roots, greater care must be taken in transplanting them. In this stage it is of vital importance that the roots be soaked in a hormone or vitamin solution before planting. This is also the case when removing plants from cans. A little precaution will prevent a lot of shock. And in breezy areas a strong stake at planting time will keep the young tree from being uprooted.

TAKING THE PLEDGE

Before we get too far along there is a most important business matter to consider. This regards the health and safety of humans and animals on your property. It has to do with every package of pesticide that you have on your premises. All pesticides are killers and should be used wisely and with caution. So, before the time comes when you are going to be spraying the insects, the weeds, or the fungus, we are asking you to take The Pledge. This, we repeat, is of vital importance to you.

On every package of pesticide there should be a label. This is the manufacturer's message to the user. On this label he tells us what ingredients the material contains and what it will control. He tells us how much to use and how often we should use it. He warns you to use his product only according to directions. In effect, he also tells you that he can assume no responsibility once this product is in your hands.

So The Pledge is in order. It takes but a few minutes of your time and costs you nothing. You don't have to limit its use to pesticides. No matter what the product might be, you will read everything on the label before you open the package. You will follow the directions to the letter. It's even more important than fastening your seat belt before you drive. We trust that each one of you will take The Pledge . . . and keep it.

Among other things, next week, we'll discuss bedding plants.

IN MEMORIAM

—for Catherine Geldeneck

I think of her among her gentle hills
That so rejoiced her heart with constant change.
The eager buds of spring upon the birches
The fragrant violets in their leafy glades;
The full return of summer, leaf and shadow,
The waving grass, the roses on the roof
The bud-to-blossom time of various flowers,
The tawny autumn which she always painted
As though she loved it for her happiest hours,
Having the colors friendly to her brush
With all their golden moods and subtle shades.

Then in this land where winter is so mild
She loved the lines of trees against the sky,
The flight of birds, the silken-seeded grass,
The smoother outlines of the leafless hills.
She was the painter of earth's poetry!
Her hills will miss her now, and so shall we.

What's Going on Here?

CARMEL HACIENDA

Bill Mahon, lately of Scottsdale, Arizona, was welcomed into Hacienda Carmel as a resident on February 7 at a cocktail party in the home of Carol and Roy Phelan. Bill, who is an ardent golfer and a member of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, had an opportunity to meet many Haciendas golfers and their wives. He came to Hacienda Carmel and the Valley as a temporary resident in the summer of 1966 and found the area much to his liking, so moved here when he had disposed of his Scottsdale property.

Mrs. Celeste Hunter won the Hacienda Carmel Ladies Shuffleboard Tournament by defeating Miss Midge Pittman, runner-up. Mrs. Hunter's name will be inscribed as 1966 Champion on the permanent plaque displayed in Casa Central.

Word is going around to the effect that a domino tournament soon will be sponsored by the Casa Lobos Club. Several "experts" have volunteered as coaches to help members who have not had the privilege of growing up in "The Domino Belt." In late March, things will come to a head, who knows, maybe the neophytes will do better than expected?

CANTERBURY WOODS

An exhibition of paintings by a local artist, Louise Cardeiro Boyer, is now being shown in the John Tennant Memorial Building at Canterbury Woods. Mrs. Boyer, the wife of pianist Gilbert Boyer, has shown her work on the west and east coasts, in Mexico, Guatemala, Ecuador and Munich, Germany.

On March 12 at 3:30 p.m., there will be a reading of a one-act play by one of the members of the Players Group. Today a meeting was called for 4 p.m. in the Canterbury Room for this group.

CARMEL VALLEY MANOR

Today, Vincent Bliss of the Pacific Grove Museum Association was scheduled to talk on "Shore Life" to the Nature Study Group.

On March 17, the Carmel Valley Manor staff will present its annual "Spring Frolic."

FOREST HILL MANOR

An evening of music will be presented by Jean Canada and Robert Forbes for the residents of Forest Hill Manor on March 9. Among Mrs. Canada's songs there will be selections from the movie "The Sound of Music." Others will include classical and religious pieces.

Mrs. Ann Hazen, who has just returned from a five-month tour, will give a resume of her trip with slides and commentary. She has covered many European countries but slides on Lapland and Northern Scandinavia will be among those she will show on March 16. Her trip finally brought her home from Alaska down the Alcan Highway.

Bad news, Tom, I was just downtown and heard that CARMEL was going to the dogs!

PINPOINT PROFILE
Hal C. Wright

After successfully completing 45 years in the advertising field, Hal C. Wright may very well say "I feel that I have earned my right to retire." His was an interesting career—one that required his undivided attention — one that was demanding—one that gave him an incalculable sense of satisfaction.

Hal was born in Western Illinois, a son of the local druggist. There were four other boys and one girl in the family. At a very early age Hal's father moved the family out to the old farm on the outskirts of town.

"In order to keep us all fed," says Hal.

After attending the local schools he joined the U. S. Army for a short time. When he returned home, after reading an advertisement in the paper telling of a beginners class in advertising, he signed up for a term in the local business college.

This training accomplished, his first job took him into the field of his choice as an advertising copy writer. Then, at 21 years old, he took a job with an advertising agency as a specialized automotive copy writer.

The ladder of success was before him and Hal reached for another rung. This time he became associated with International Harvester Co. In 1941, when World War II started, this company was requested by the government to convert some of its facilities into overhaul schools for all-wheeled vehicles.

Hal was chosen to teach Navy personnel the repairing of all types of government trucks, bulldozers, etc. The schools, located in Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco, kept Hal hopping planes throughout the duration of the war because it was his job to see that this operation kept functioning properly.

When the officials of International Harvester planned a collosal exhibition to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the company, Hal was given a chance to show his ingenuity by producing a brochure showing its progress and growth. After several months of research, he came up with a unique document showing the company's growth in picture and story from 1847 to 1947. To the 500,000 people visiting the exhibition, this brochure told, in detail, the progress of a very successful business.

A sincere testimonial afforded Hal from the president, J. L. McCaffrey, was truly a signal honor. "This", says Hal, "is one of my most cherished memories of the company.

Another side of this advertising executive's life was brought to light when we mentioned poetry. He has had several poems accepted by Chicago newspapers and magazines.

As a tribute to his parents on their 50th anniversary, Hal wrote a tender sonnet. Among his many activities he managed to find enough time to act as the commander of his American Legion Post in 1939.

Hal and his wife, Claire, live in Hacienda Carmel. They came west in order to be near their only daughter, Mrs. Ginnie Drew.

An ardent golfer, Hal plays at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club almost every day.

"Just think, my friends are snowbound back there in Chicago and here I am playing golf every day! This is the life!" he said in conclusion.

Letter To Editor

OVERRIDE TAX

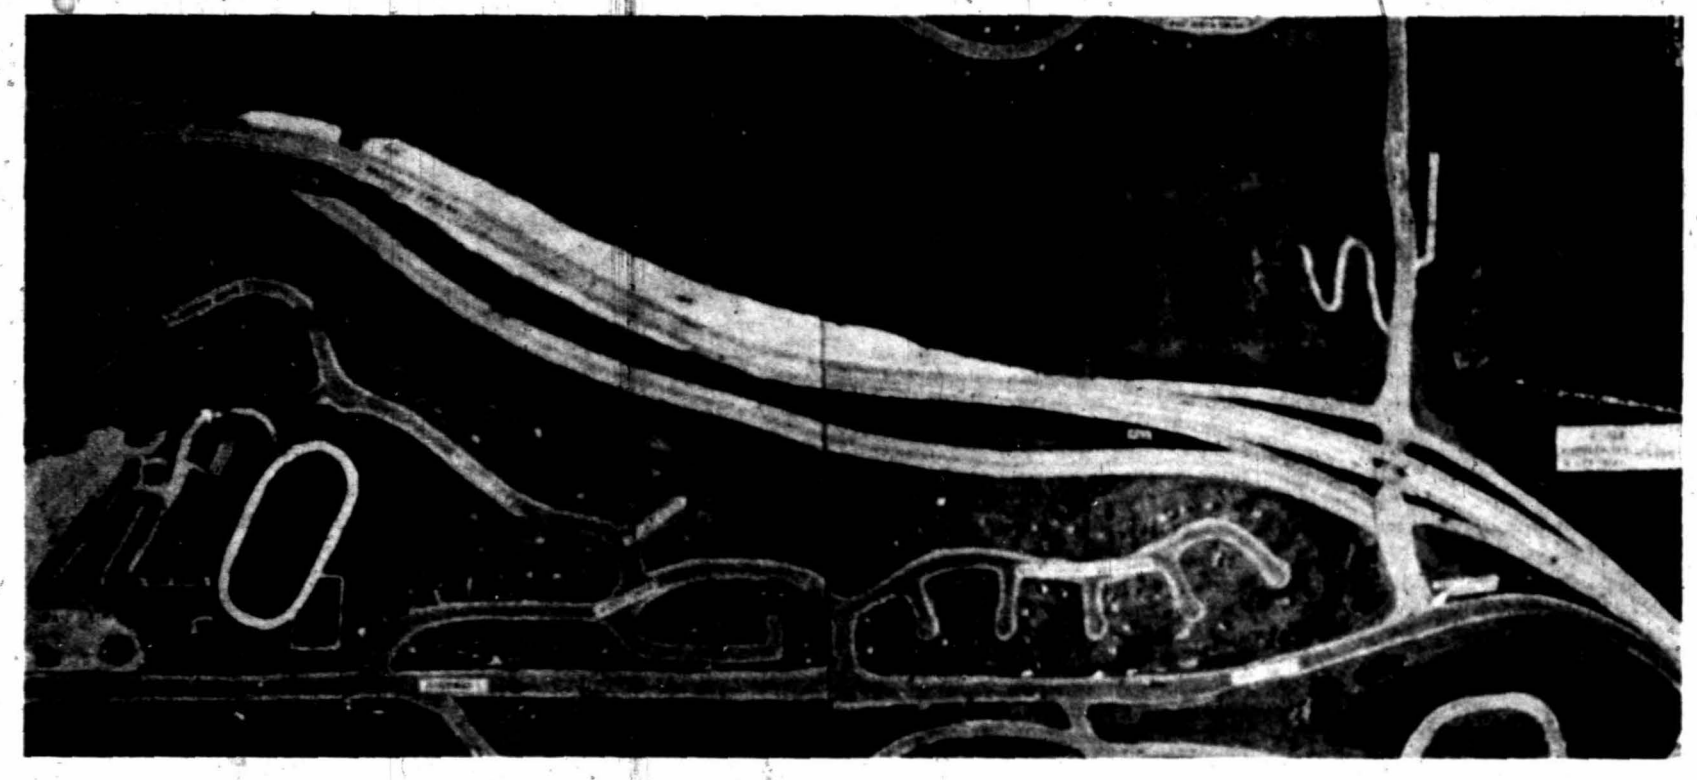

We, the members of the board of education of the Carmel Unified School District, wish to express our deep concern and regret that a small group of local citizens, using the name of the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association, would print and distribute materials opposing the pending tax override which contain major errors in fact and a series of highly distorted comparisons.

Upon calling the March 7 override election, the board and superintendent Dr. Harris A. Taylor agreed that the district would make every effort to be as completely factual as possible. We felt the issue should be decided on the facts. It appears that the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association has not accorded the district the same treatment. The win at any cost attitude is indeed disturbing. For example, he taxpayers association in their printed material listed the superintendent's salary as being $500 more than his contract states and the business manager's salary as $2,250 more than his contract states. These salaries are a matter of public record.

As the school district's lay board, elected by the people, we suggest you disregard the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association's misleading printed materials.

Alternatives To Hatton Canyon Freeway

The model above, given to the City of Carmel by the Carmel Citizens Committee and kept at city hall, shows meandering scenic road development suggested as an alternative to the Hatton Canyon section of Highway One freeway development, approved by the city in 1955, and which will extend from the Carpenter Street intersection, north of Carmel, to the Carmel River bridge.

The freeway development (top) will scar the wooded canyon with deep ugly cuts and unsightly fills. The two-way alternative route (beneath freeway) when definitely planned would conform to the contours of the terrain. Present Highway One is shown at the bottom of the picture.

Rear Admiral C. W. Fisher (USN Ret.), president of the citizens committee, for a year, has been carrying on a vigorous campaign for a meandering scenic route, both on behalf of the committee and privately. His endeavors have resulted in support for scenic road development from jurisdictions of all Peninsula cities, except Seaside, which stated its support was contingent upon a scenic route being approved by the Monterey Peninsula Area Planning Commission. The latter body approved an alternative road at its last meeting.

Assemblyman Alan Pattee, on February 10, introduced into the State Assembly a resolution (HR No. 75) asking that the Hatton Canyon freeway section, as approved in 1955, be referred to the state parks and recreation department for consideration of feasibility of including this portion of Highway One in the state parkway system. If this should not be imminently feasible, Pattee's resolution asked that the department make recommendations for parkway character development through Hatton Canyon while retaining the road in the state scenic highway system. Pattee's legislation also asked for a report on these matters before May 1.

Now, Robert J. Datel, district engineer for the State Division of Highways has been reported as stating that the project will be set aside for at least 3 to 5 years.

4 BEDROOMS NEAR BEACH—$40,000

An ideal family home! Large bedrooms with plenty of closet space and built-ins. Huge, sunny patio with easy-care garden. All electric kitchen. Beamed-ceiling living room. Large family-dining room. Carpeted throughout. Near public and parochial elementary schools, in an excellent neighborhood with some, but not too many children. The house is on a quiet, dead-end street, about 3 blocks from the beach.

MISSION FIELDS—3 BEDROOMS—LOW DOWN PAYMENT

In popular Mission Fields—clean 3 bedrooms, den, 2 baths, large fenced yard, at the end of a dead-end street. AND, best of all, it can be bought for 10% down, or less. Full price $29,850.

CARMEL—2 BEDROOMS—PRIVATE—$28,500

A beautiful 2-car garage and a large paved patio go with this approximately 10-year-old 2-bedroom, 1-bath, beamed-ceiling living room home. A fine home at $28,500. Exclusive.

OCEAN VIEW LOT—$9,750

IN CARMEL HIGHLANDS, and a magnificent ocean view it is, too. At $9,750 and an ocean view, there has to be a catch, which is that while the price isn't steep (far from it!) the lot definitely is. If you're from Marin County, it may seem like a gentle slope; if you're from Arizona it will seem like a cliff. While it's a difficult site, it's far from an impossible one. Really, it's a good value.

3 BEDROOMS NEAR HATTON FIELDS $33,500

Just inside the Carmel City limits, we have an exceptionally neat, clean, not-too-little 3-bedroom, 1-bath home. The garden is a joy—attractive, but easy to care for. If you're fussy, but you needs are modest, this well located home should be just what you're looking for. Shown by appointment. Exclusive.

NEW SUPERVISOR

Governor Ronald Reagan, on Tuesday appointed Willard Branson of Carmel Valley as Monterey County supervisor to replace Thomson J. Hudson who has represented the fifth supervisorial district, including Carmel, for almost ten years. Hudson resigned to become an unpaid consultant on conservation and planning in Governor Reagan's office. Branson was a member of the Monterey County Planning Commission until his new appointment. He is the husband of the former Natalie Hatton, member of a pioneer Carmel Valley family.

district like where they live. They don't want to live elsewhere. They have an advantage over property owners in other Peninsula districts. Their school taxes still will continue to be the lowest in the area. Moreover, they have a responsibility for the future of this nation that should not be shirked. It will cost the owner of a house and lot valued at $40,000 a total of $37 a year, just a few cents over $3 a month, to maintain the quality of the Carmel Unified School District. M.L.

GIRL SCOUTS ENTERTAIN

Over Lincoln's Birthday weekend, the girls of Cadette Troop 2158 of Carmel were hostesses for a visit from Cadette Troop 469 of Sacramento. The 19 girls and four leaders making the trip from the state capital were kept busy by a well planned program which combined sightseeing and just fun. The weekend included a hot dog roast and campfire singing, in Cooke's Cove at the foot of Thirteenth Street, above. The Carmel Cadettes will be the guests of the Sacramento Troop over Palm Sunday (March 26) weekend.

ADMIRAL FISHER FAVORS OVERRIDE TAX

SPECIAL ELECTION

A reference was made to the waste of $1,100 for the special election and that only a 25% vote should be expected. In the 1966 override election, 48% of the registered voters exercised their right to vote. The actual reason for having the election in early March instead of the middle of April is to allow the staff more time to develop plans for the coming school year and to be able to employ new teachers early enough to get a good selection. Many districts have already employed a large percentage of their new teachers. Carmel has not offered a contract to any new teacher at this time.

HIGHER PER CHILD COST

The question is constantly raised by tax opponents as to why Carmel spends more per child than many similar districts. There are four main reasons for these high costs.

1. Carmel Unified School District has for many years maintained a relatively low pupil-teacher ratio—the kind of ratio the State Department of Education is encouraging by allowing additional apportionments to those districts that lower their ratio and penalties to those who don't. (Carmel, because of its assessed valuation is not entitled to the carrot, but is subject to the stick).
2. Teachers historically remain employed longer in Carmel than in the average district, thereby raising the average teacher's salary. This is what salary schedules attempt to accomplish since experienced teachers have more to offer to the instructional program.
3. The Carmel Unified School District spends nearly 2½ times as much per child as the average district in the state for pupil transportation. There are 594 square miles to service which makes the transportation system both difficult and costly. The drivers have to contend with coastal rock slides, dangerous mountainous roads, and even snow. It is difficult to visualize the size of the district, but if you consider that the district is 150 times larger than Pacific Grove Unified School District, perhaps the problem becomes easier to understand.
4. The two small Coast schools are much more costly to maintain than the larger schools. Tularcitos School, the largest elementary school in the District, is located in Carmel Valley and must be heated entirely by diesel oil.

All these factors, and more, indicate why Carmel spends more per child than many other districts.

WHY GRASS?

The taxpayers' bulletin even went so far as to criticize the district for having grass in front of the Instructional Materials Center. The critics know very well that lawn maintenance is a very minor item and that if there were not grass there would be a weed control and soil erosion problem.

The board and the superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District have made every effort to be as accurate as possible in the development of their printed materials. We wish the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association had been as careful. However, it is felt that the citizens of Carmel Unified School District are intelligent enough to see through this attempt by the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association to mislead them at the expense of the community's children.
